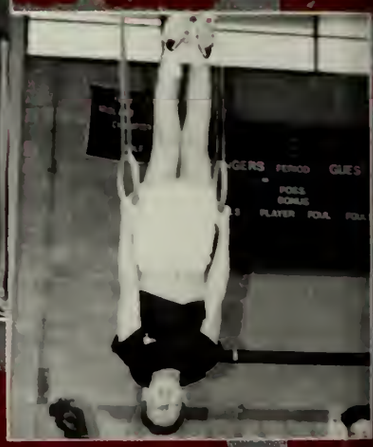
HUGGING



SWINGING

Feelings of uncertainty
Is in all of our minds
Taking risks is the only way
To discover and to find.
The future holds our ups and downs
With smiles you'll give and tears you'll cry
At times the stress is too much to handle
But all we can do is wait and sigh.
We all have to start
To conquer our emotions
Think about what lies ahead
And thrust forward into motion.
Not knowing what to expect
In order for things to start
It's a chance we have to take and Leap in the Dark.

Smiling, Jess Zahavi reads a note from a friend.

The Highlights of student life are what truly bring us through the four years of high school. Student life ranges from sports to drama to music to (of course) academics. Everyone has their own niche, and that's what makes it so great. When we're not involved in our many activities; student life takes us to dances, plays, and games.

There is also the most important place of all (where all the above mentioned activities are planned) — The Balcony. With only three minutes between classes, there isn't much time for the balconies during the day. Whenever we do catch an extra second, there we are — chatting, gossiping and deciding what to do with our weekends.

Without all of these activities, student life would be nonexistent and the highlights of high school would soon fade.

Climbing up a tree grown in our own gym, Jim Gingras performs a bizarre ritual with Mickey Mouse inner-tubes.

Welcome to Disneylandl Actually, welcome to Julio's Plaza — home of Abdow's where the Senior Breakfast occurs at least once a year.

Senior spirit at its best. The seniors crowd the balcony on the first day of school, It's hard to believe that many people can fit in such a small areal

Senior (sen'yer): The true definition of a senior, as we soon discovered, had many more aspects than Funken Wagnal's Dictionary could offer. It would mean freedom, independence, and much responsibility. Throughout the year it would come in different forms: the senior breakfast (an outright senior tradition) in which we would cause havoc at Abdow's usually the first show of senior spirit; the senior balcony (the senior hangout for everyone who arrives before the five-minute bell); and the extensive senior privileges (which are solely made up of the right to leave at 7th period study).

Senioritis (sen'yer i tiz): a highly contagious disease caused by monotony and a need to change; usually experienced by seniors halfway through the year; sometimes spreads to juniors who think they are seniors. Symptoms:
burning, itching sensation; tiredness and dizzy spells;dilated pupils; hair loss (the latter symptom also can occur during college application deadlines);
loss of appetite (diagnosis should not be based upon the latter symptom, which is also caused by too much school lunch). Only known cure: GRADUATION!

STYLE

"Saturday Night Fever" hits the sophomores on a Friday night as Mike Mello, Dave Fox, Bill Gaffney, Dave Tufts and Aakash Patel strut their stuff.

"That's just his style." a friend comforts. I panic. He hasn't called in three days. Style, huh? Well, it worked for him so I decide that it will be my style too. It doesn't work. We never see each other again. As I find out, style can't be taught, or for the matter learned. It's an unconscious attitude, a personal flair that makes you individual. Style permeates into all aspects of your life — school, home and social lives. Expressions of style can be as obvious as your wardrobe or as minute as how you answer the phone. Many people search for their style by trial and error. Girls teeter in their new high heels as guys try parting their hair on the opposite side. You experiment until the "right look" is found. Style. First you discover it, then you become it.

Denise McPherson smiles coquettishly at the camera as she and her date dance to a slow song.

Times to Remember

When you look back at your high school memories, as you are doing now, there will be many things you will fondly recollect. One of those things will certainly be the Junior Prom. The awkward process all began with the usual quest of finding a date. After that the fun really began. The girls (who sometimes knew what dress they would wear before they knew which boy they were going with) would talk amongst themselves about their dresses and ask others for their opinion. The day of the dance was quite possible the best day of the year for local hairdressers. Many girls would disappear from school around lunch time in order to begin necessary preparations. The boys took a more laid back approach until a couple of weeks before the prom. They rushed to stores, hoping to find a good suit and praying not to get stuck with a lovely pastel blue one stuck on the back of some rack. The boys usually had their hair cut sometime during the week but always made a last-minute fuss over it.

Limousines picked up many of the couples while others came in their own cars. After arriving at Indian Meadows, we fell into the photography line where we checked out everyone else and generally felt rather uncomfortable. After the photograph was taken, we moved to our pre-chosen (thanks to Mrs. Corbosiero) tables. Soon conversation picked up and we had great fun with our Key rings, S.A.D.D. cards (dime included, of course), and balloons. Over the course of about the next two hours our meals were served. This made it rather difficult to dance because the sporadic food serving always brought us back and forth. After the last course (at least I think it was, it was the last one I ate anyway) we were set free to dance with our dates and others on that gigantic four by four dance floor. We paraded around the floor and a panel of judges (highly qualified officials, I might add) picked out our queen and her court (a fine choice as we can see in the picture). Although the dance music stopped a full half hour before it was supposed to, we all still got in our fair share of dancing. After the limo drove us home many of us changed our clothes and regrouped to continue partying. Here some memories might grow hazy (due to lack of sleep, of course). Many of us stayed up until the early hours of the next day talking and watching movies (among other things). The next day differed for many of us. Some went to Cape Cod for a beach party, while some went to Rhode Island and enjoyed a quiet day at the beach. Others got lost on the way to Riverside Park and could not find the others who went before them. What we each did on this day varied but we each have our own special memories to go along with it. I hope you enjoyed this little trip down memory lane. And, never forget, These are the Time to Remember.

Competition Day

The definition of Competition Day 1989, and what it entailed, was not an easy question to answer, for it strictly depended upon who was being asked. The faculty (especially the phys. ed. teachers) felt it was a high school tradition to boost the spirit of the student body. Freshmen went along with this and added in that it was a "fun" way to spend the last hour of school before April vacation. Sophomores and Juniors, however, held a slightly different view. While some of them enjoyed watching their fellow classmates participate in the bizarre challenges, most had their minds on the Russia and England trips that they would journey on the next day and the packing they had yet to do. Last, but not least, there was the seniors. The lucky ones accepted to Quest were counting the last moments of their senior year, while the unlucky ones began the countdown to graduation.

Nancy Perks does an outstanding job scrubbing the car.

Mike Bacharz showed our customers the way to the carwash and haunted house?

The yearbook staff of 1990 had gathered twice the spirit over the summer in order to make this fall's Car Wash/Bake Sale a splashing success. Rescheduled due to rain form June 19th, our hoses were more than ready when the busy day of September 9th finally arrived. Cars followed in faster than they could be washed (mainly due to the intermittent hose wars supervised by Mr. Kaplan), but in the end, customer satisfaction reigned. Mike Bacharz and Jen Rochette (our clowns) were responsible for attracting these customers, and together did a wonderful job literally detouring Westboro traffic into benefiting our cause -THE YEARBOOK-. The business editor, Dave Staffieri, agreed with Mr. Kaplan that the day was a financial success. The 1990 Yearbook Carwash also allowed us to go "Wet and Wild" as the miracle called senior year began.

HARD LABOR

Remember the days when we had recess before lunch, rotating schedules, no a-la-carte line, and the most used word was "awesome"? If your memory is logged, I'll remind you that those were the days when parents bought everything from notebooks to movie tickets. They dished out money for everything, including allowance.

Well those days ended once high school began; movies were no longer $3.00 a head (even the Flick was costly!) Our parents became less generous with their wallets. We all must understand their reasons, though — high school costs a lot more money then grade school did: music, clothes, dates, and Achievement Tests (that $5.00 reimbursement never really helps!), to name a few expenses.

There was only one solution for every student faced with this dilemma — get a job. Realizing that it came down to getting a job or never spending money again, we all searched for the perfect work place, which was harder to find than we all thought.

Many Westboro High students turned to CVS and Super Stop and Shop. Others defined "scoop" in a different way than it is commonly used — at an ice cream (or frozen yogurt) shop. Some found work at fast food restaurants serving over 20 billion.

To sum it up, most students found work in town, maybe not the perfect job, but at least a paying one. This is, of course, the reason we all went to work in the first place; so, they money is great, and so are the opportunities to spend it.

SENIOR CLASS

Senior year is the epitome of a roller-coaster. It has its ups and downs, twists and turns, until you reach your final destination: graduation. Seniors have to deal with college applications, deadlines and of course, time consuming school work. The first semester is a very strenuous time trying to get everything done, but once the application process is over; senioritis sets in!

Class Officers: Chris Hamawi — President, Kelli Skog — Secretary, Andrea Candela — Vice President, Chris Gagnon — Treasurer, Ms. Corbosiero — Advisor.

WE THINK OF THE SENIORS

This year's graduating Seniors (!CLASS OF 90!) is, in general, a very positive group. Booster week actually worked this year for the first time in years and that was largely due to the spirit and positivism of the Seniors. The class has, in the last year or so, come together more and has become pretty close-knit. Here's what the rest of the school thinks of them . . .

FRESHMAN: "Most of them are cool, except for a bunch of them; they're great because they give me tapes and let me drive their cars . . . "

SOPHOMORE: "The Senior class is, well, they're all so tense; into school so badly, I don't understand it . . . "

JUNIOR: "They're all pretty nice. The Seniors have so many different people, but they seem to stick together very well . . "

SENIOR: "We're great . . . "

WHAT! IS A SENIOR?

SENIORS . . .

* wear "comfortable clothes" (raggy sweatpants, T-Shirts and ripped jeans) and can get away with it

* get through the lunch line first

* arrange their schedules around first and seventh period study

* don't mind paying that lady $7.50 for measuring their head

* have a crazed, dazed look on their face from hyper parents

* give nicknames to their cars

* start rolling their pennies

* live for QUEST

* laugh at the thought of actually running the mile

Sean Donnelly has that anxious look on his face from too much pressure.

Just a couple of seniors: Christie Foulke and Ryan Murphy.

Helen Alexander continues her academic pursuits after school in the lobby.

SENIOR YEAR:

We saw it on TV, in movies, we read about in magazines, we heard endless stories from our parents about it — Senior year. It's been built up slowly over about 17 years to some pillar year of our life, some great ending to our Westboro schooling, right?? Well, maybe. It really depends on who you talk to. Some will agree, some won't. Most are in the middle, agreeing that Senior year is really a mixture of the horrible and tremendous in the same year, sometimes in the same day.

SENIOR PICTURES — "Who is that?" Everyone looks so much better (where'd all that acne go?), older and so NICE in their Senior pictures. People you never thought of as pretty or handsome look pretty and handsome ALL OF A SUDDEN. It's weird . . .

COLLEGE APPLICATIONS

THE MYTH: "I'll start early, yah, that's it — I'll have my applicatians dane before September starts! I mean, how hard can it be??"

THE REALITY: Well, summer praved ta be mare tempting than callege applicatians did, and sa they didn't get started until a few days before the deadline, right? Thase essays were harder ta write than you thought and af caurse, each callege decided an a tatally unique, abscure questian abaut the effect yaur pet had an your view an life ar samething like that. College applicatians wouldn't have been sa bad if regular schaalwark didn't caincide with them — teachers went term paper happy, test happy and conspired with aur parents ta drive us crazy.

SENIOR PRIVILEGES

THE MYTH: Myth #1 started when we gat aut af the Juniar High and believed that we'd get ever so many extra privileges. That myth was shattered on the first day when we realized that little was different here than there — we still cauldn't chew gum in schaal, we still cauldn't run in the halls, we cauldn't raam the halls either for that matter! But, we cauld buy ice cream every day, samehaw it didn't seem like a great cause for celebratian.

THE REALITY: Sa we laaked ta Seniar Year. The Seniars were big. They even gat ta finish schaal early. Well, we're here, we're dane and we aren't sa big, we can't da anything we want (we da get ta finish school early thaugh).

SENIOR SLIDE —

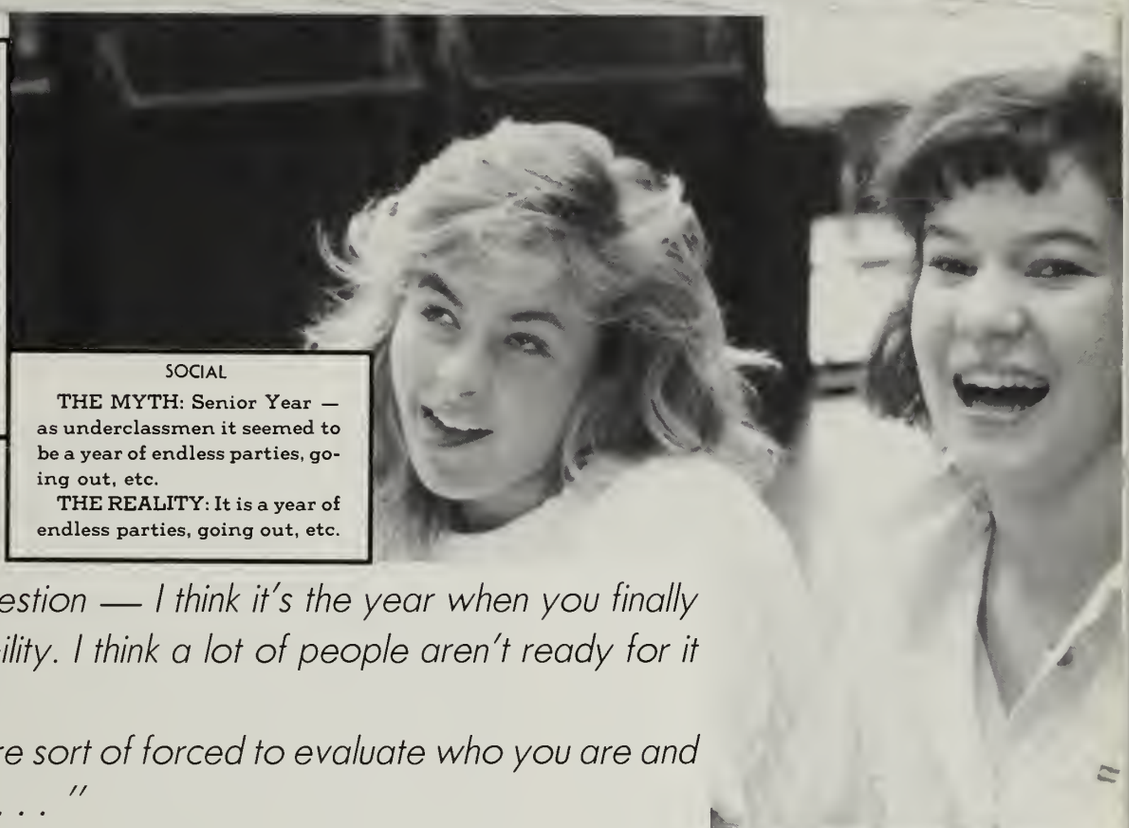
"You just don't care anymore . . ."
"What Senior Slide? It's called the Senior STOP!"

WHAT IT WAS AND WHAT IT REALLY IS

JOBS

THE MYTH: We all needed extra cash freshman year and same af us warked, and we actually sart af enjayed it. Things weren't sa bad back then. Seniar year, we believed, wauld be sa easy that we'd have haurs upan haurs ta wark and pile up the cash.

THE REALITY: The prablem with Senior year is that we need the money but we dan't have the time. There are very few haurs ta "pile up the cash" and all the cash we do pile up ends up at the bank far callege.



SOCIAL

THE MYTH: Senior Year — as underclassmen it seemed to be a year of endless parties, going out, etc.

THE REALITY: It is a year of endless parties, going out, etc.

QUOTES

"It's, ah, it's a tough question — I think it's the year when you finally grow up, get responsibility. I think a lot of people aren't ready for it . . . "

"It's a year where you're sort of forced to evaluate who you are and who you want to be . . . "

"You want to leave, but you don't want to leave, you're in between an adult and an adolescent. You're afraid of leaving the comfortable . . . "

"Being a Senior isn't all it's cracked up to be —"

JUNIOR CLASS

On the first day of school, the class of '91 had finally achieved the vaunted status of being Juniors. At first, being an upperclassman is a little hard to get used to, but the feeling of superiority quickly settled in. Suddenly, it seems like everyone is driving to school and the weekends become filled with trips to strange places and tons of "cruising". Of course, Junior year is anything but "fun and games". Believe it or not, the teachers find new and improved ways to load on even more work than they did sophomore year. Also Juniors have to worry about their futures for the first time and they begin to take that LEAP IN THE DARK into college. Suddenly, strange things like SAT's, PSAT's, AP's and Achievements start popping up all over the place. Through all these troubles, Junior year becomes a social whirlwind, culminating into the Junior Prom.

WE THINK OF THE JUNIORS

The personality of this year's Juniors seems hard to pin down. Some see them as one big blur full of people who are athletes, A-students and musicians all at the same time. Here's how we see them . . .

FRESHMAN: "The juniors are sooo hot!"

SOPHOMORE: "I don't get the junior class . . . they are all the same, all on the same wavelength."

JUNIOR: "We're a really old class. You know how many people got their licenses over the summer? I have so many friends who are going to be 17 before January . . . "

SENIOR: "What's up with them?"

WHAT! IS A JUNIOR?

JUNIORS . . .

* don't have talent shows

* receive mail daily — from colleges in Wisconsin

* spend hundreds of dollars on the Prom (which only lasts 3 hours)

* walk up the main stairs, keys in hand, to prove that they have their licenses

* no longer share homework — with class rank coming — it's every man for himself

* worry that they won't like in April the person they asked to the Prom in January

* are finally upperclassmen (whatever that means)

Juniors do lunch . . . Meredith Inman, Caroline Malley, Sunni Zweemer, Gretchen Bloss.

Darren Killeen doing lunch as well.

Juniors seem to be scared of cameras — Ken Fleming and Percy Riley.

SOPHOMORE class

As the Freshman year consisted of adjusting to the WHS after taking that huge LEAP IN THE DARK, Sophomore is the year to assure your footing and direction. A year that you begin to decide which direction your next leap into college and the future will take you. Tenth grade is free from the pressures of the other grades because of college acceptance and intimidating upper classmen and it highlights on receiving class rings. While changes and college pressures will be abundant in the future years, Sophomore year will be a comfortable stop before you take that gigantic LEAP IN THE DARK.

Class officers: Lucinda Wheelock, Leanne Doherty, Dave Sullivan, Bill Gaffney, Mrs. Louis — Class Advisor.

WE THINK OF THE SOPHOMORES

This year's sophomores have proven to be an unusual class. Seen by most as diverse and full of individuals, in general they are well-liked. The quotes below are testament to that . . .

FRESHMAN: "Now that they're in high school, they act like they don't know us."

SOPHOMORE: "Our class is filled with fantastic, wonderful, strange people and I love them all . . . "

JUNIOR: "They're really courageous. I can remember last year on the first day of school, they weren't in one big lump on the lobby floor, they were already out on the balcony . . . "

SENIOR: "I like 'em. They're pretty cool . . . "

WHAT! IS A SOPHOMORE?

Sophomores
* can push around the freshmen

* model their class rings

* dread square dancing with the freshmen in gym

* dream about driver's ed and actually meeting Ms. Aubin

* learn the value of caffeine during exams

* actually stand on the balcony

* stays up to midnight doing the geometry project due the next day

* are in limbo between the immature freshmen and the unreachable upperclassmen

Freshy

Coming into Westboro High as a freshman, one has to expect certain traditions. The first day is always the toughest. The freshmen, not yet knowing their "designated" spot on the balcony, tend to opt for clustering in the lobby. Unfortunately, with this option comes humiliation! All and all, freshmen year is full of new experiences. "The high school career" lies before you in which you have many events to look forward to. Don't leap into it too fast; it will be over before you know it.

The Class Officers: Darcy Drennan — President, Katy McGinn — Vice President, Sarah Matson — Secretary, Justin Shaw — Treasurer, Mrs. Boyle — Advisor

WE THINK OF THE FRESHMEN

This year's freshmen class entered the high school with a reputation that drifted up from the mighty junior high. This reputation included warnings of a "party class" and "Did you see them at Freshman Orientation??" Here's what we think of them now . . .

FRESHMAN: "We're so cool . . . "

SOPHMORE: "They're somewhat like chameleons, umm, they came in very confident but were put in their place very quickly."

JUNIOR: "They're so quiet . . . so small . . . "

SENIOR: "We heard they were so rowdy and loud, I haven't seen too much evidence of that yet, but give 'em three years . . . maybe they'll live up to that reputation."

WHAT!

IS A FRESHMAN?

FRESHMEN . . .

*Actually go to Mr. Kaplan for the money the juice machine ate

*take lowas seriously

*make up missed gym classes

*actually tell their parents "what went on in school today"

*dress up for midterms

*still go to the Flick

*bring home school notices

*go to all the dances

*give the seniors a feeling of superiority

Steve LeBlanc is absolutely absorbed in his book (and what book is that anyway?)

Kathy Vidola looks thrilled at the idea of being a freshman.

To some, teachers are just a background noise in their daydreams. But to others, teachers are the dedicated, caring people who help us to achieve our dreams. Ahead of us lies an entirely new world, just waiting to be explored. Behind us lies four years of wonderful memories for which our faculty has prepared us. As freshmen, we knew nothing about the Cold War, Pascal's Triangle or dominant genes. As seniors, we would like to thank the faculty for teaching us not only about academics, but about ourselves.

Enjoy the Ride...

All I can remember from the '70's is a strange voice yelling to my mother, "Push, push!" But life in the '70's can't be that "simple." What was the typical '70's high school student's life like? I have these visions of students decked out in bell-bottoms with long hair listening to Led Zeppelin. With a little bit more thought, I soon came to a very obvious conclusion: A teen in the '70's did the same things we do now. He went to football games and parties. He hung out with his friends on the balconies and got detentions from Miss Spinney for chewing gum. And yes, there were probably many long boring Friday nights when he did nothing but drive around and waste gas. The fact is that fads and fashions may change — but the typical teenager hasn't changed that much at all.

In the '90's, now the students at WHS think they are the coolest and the freshest ever. But just wait another couple of decades when someone finds an old picture of us and gets a good laugh or two over the way we look. That someone may not be wearing a Madonna concert t-shirt or a pair of Guess jeans, but she will probably still be hanging out with her friends, going to dances and making late night stops at Harry's for a Zippy burger and fries.

WHAT

For many, high school is the time in which we begin to think seriously as to what we are going to do with the rest of our lives. It is in high school that we begin to feel pressure to choose the courses that will best benefit our future. Often we feel all alone and in the dark, confused about which path to take or corners to turn. Many times we dream of our future successes as making lots of money or being extremely famous. Ralph Waldo Emerson defined success beautifully in the following quote — "To laugh often and love much; to win the respect of intelligent persons and the affection of children; to earn the approbation of honest critics and to endure the betrayal of false friends; to appreciate beauty; to find the best in others; to give of one's self; to leave the world a bit better, whether be a healthy child, a garden patch, or a redeemed social condition; to have played and laughed with enthusiasm and sung with exultation; to know that even one life has breathed easier because you have lived — this is to have succeeded."

We hope that this quote will remain with you forever. When someone tries to place a value on your success in life, you will realize that there is more to success than making money and being famous.

The Concert Choir

The one thing I will probably always remember about Concert Choir will not be the trips, the concerts or the singing, but those BREATHING EXERCISES! Like we don't already know how to breathe, and I figure I'm probably pretty proficient at it by now, seeing that I've been doing it for nearly 18 years now. Anyway, Mr. P insists that we do this at the beginning of every Concert Choir class, so I do.

It all starts with "DO YOUR BREATHING!!" OK, thanks for reminding me . . .

We all bend over and inhale five deep breaths. We then stand up straight and take yet another deep breath, meanwhile trying to weather the massive headrush that we all just got. With our lungs sufficiently filled with fresh air (?), our heads nicely cleared (?), we begin our animal noises. Perhaps this is done to humble us, I can see no other good reason for it . . . but it starts with exhaling slowly and hissing at the same time. Then we pant for a while, much like my mother must have done at her Lamaze classes. Then we're done with breathing, no need for it anymore . . . we can wait two days to do it again, right?

Mr. Pappazisis is wary of things going on behind him.

Concert Band

Ah Concert Band! Land of plastic clarinets, polyester uniforms (but they're new!!), and one insane conductor. Why he puts up with us I'll never know, but it takes a certain amount of guts and determination to lead a motley crew like us. What to write about band that you don't know already?? I don't know, most people who want to know about band already do, and those that don't don't care.

But you should!! You too, could be a wearer of polyester, a player of some odd instrument and a traveler to such foreign lands as wild Canada or Washington! Even if you insist that you hate music and Concert Band doesn't appeal to you in the least, care!! The members of Concert band are a committed and wily group, who else would put up with marching in freezing football games and practicing that marching on Saturday mornings and afternoons? Who else would spend that treasured half day before Thanksgiving out at the football field, besides the football team???

Above: Mr. Jost directs the band to perfection, or close to it.

The Concert Band

Geek Us

Above: Becky's source of inspiration, her dead, I repeat dead, car — what a piece (thanx Patyio!)!!

BECKY: OK, SO I ADMIT IT, I WAS THE ONE WHO LOST THOSE BLEEPIN PICTURES! Of course, I also was the one who found them . . . I often think: What would happen if I wasn't an editor? I'd get sleep, I'd eat regular meals, my stomach would be intact, I'd be sane (relatively of course) and people would actually enjoy my company. When I first accepted the position, I thought it would improve my character . . . actually I thought it would look good on my college application. I wanted something that each of my counterparts had: David's maturity, Trine's rationality, Patrick's sense of responsibility and most of all, Bob Kaplan's argyle socks. Well, David's image was blown in Russia, Trine's driving ability shattered hers and Patrick, well, what is responsibility anyway??? Mr. Kaplan; however, maintained his image and his argyle socks, and for that I'll always be grateful.

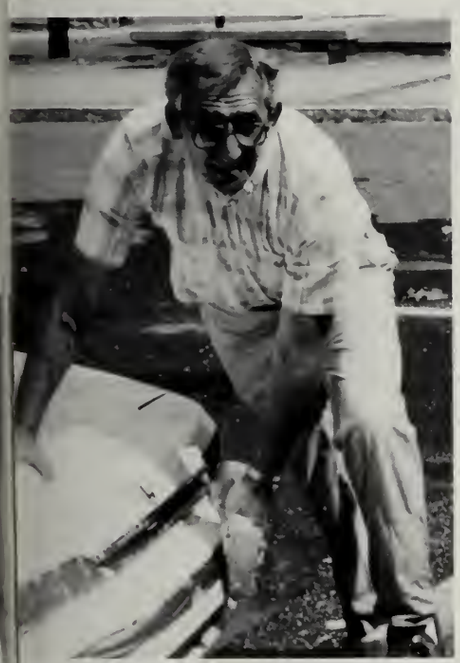
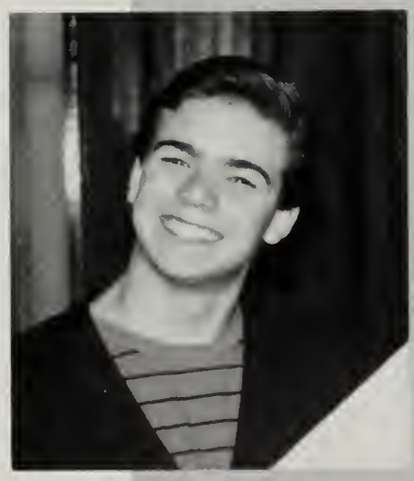
TRINE: I must've eaten bad clams or something the day I said yes to being a yearbook editor. for good judgment and reason seemed to have left me entirely. Why, for example, would anyone want to do layouts, write copy, and look at thousands of pictures all day? I don't know myself. although I ask myself that often. If that weren't all, a series of catastrophes have hit us over and over and over, and over . . . the gods don't like us very much. Every night Beck and I do a rain dance for the book, so far to no avail. Pictures have been destroyed. layouts lost. grids eaten and cameras broken. so why? Why? Why???

I dunno. There is a pseudo-psado=masochistic tendency that runs in all editors, we are a rare breed (thank God). We are gluttons for punishment, we thrive on disaster, we hate it when things go well . . . Tomorrow maybe we'll hear we have no money, or maybe, if we're lucky a disk will get devoured, or maybe, maybe, we'll lose all the pictures. There is always another day . . .



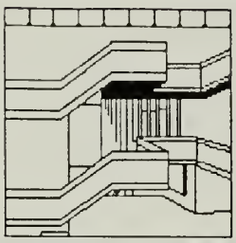
BOB: Murphy's Low states that "If something can go rong it will" Murphy had our yearbook in mind. But ock on wood things have gone smoothly this morn-g. Yesterday we even found the team pictures nich had been missing for a week. Don't misunder-ind, I love being the advisor — I work with great ople and they do all the work. I just pick great ople and quietly become obsolescent. Well, I'll p. Tomorrow is another day and I'll just await the t harbinger — "Pat's camera is missing," "the juice achine is chucking quarters all over the place," on-r "Trine and Becky have gone to New Jersey," once is everything. (hee, hee, hee)



PATRICK Why, do you ask, would somebody want to subject themselves to such an experience as a yearbook editor? I don't know, cheap thrills maybe. One person that truly sticks out in my mind is the one who lost 60 cents in the juice machine on the fateful day my camera plunged to its death. I don't remember who it was . but thanks, you taught me some math (Juice machine + Pentax = Minolta Maxxum 7000i). Another person who deserved a prize is the young man who single-handedly exposed two rolls of film and messed up two different deadlines (You know who you are).

Juice, juice, juice! I will be amazed if the juice machine lasts for a week without breaking down. Patrick, keep your camera off my juice machine. It could get hurt. I love rain on the day of a car wash, it's great for business. In the future, having a car wash, watch out for the faucet in the front of the school. It has a slight problem — it falls out!!! Thankfully, the Holiday Ball went over without any major catastrophes. Will somebody please buy an add? Being the Business Editor has been fun, despite all of the problems. Thank you Mr. Kaplan, with your argyle socks and the rest of the yearbook staff. You have all made this year both successfully and enjoyable. Mr. Kaplan, stop worrying so much. Things always work out in the end, or at least they are supposed to.

AND NOW FOR SOMETHING COMPLETELY DIFFERENT . . .



THE LOBBY OBSERVER

" The eye at the High "

Take a quiz about WHS, that gives you the answers, Page 2

THE EYE at THE HIGH

Out of the depths of what may seem to be an ultra-conservative school, "The Lobby Oberver" is testament to the fact that there is a liberal trend overcoming the school. Sort of like the Greenhouse Effect, but better. When "The Lobby Observer" debuted last year, it came out a few times and had all the markings of a fledgling newspaper. This year it bloomed under the creative and visionary eye of Mr. Carl Sharpe and Miss Liz Graves.

So far "The Lobby Observer" has made leaps and bounds in their efforts to become a major force in the reporting of the issues.

ACADECA

Academic Decathalon is not some horrifying cross between school and the Triathalon; it's a group of students who form a team that competes with other teams from other schools in a series of tests that cover just about any topic you could think of. Art History, music, World geography, science, algebra . . . the list goes on. Far from being just a team for a bunch of kids with a head for trivia, the Decathalon is a time-consuming and concentrated study of all the above-mentioned subjects. Westboro has only been in the Academic Decathalon for two years and our success rate has been amazingly high. Compared to other towns who have been preparing students for this very competition for eons, Westboro has been something of an overnight success story.

JOE BOMBER

The day started off as any Monday would; slow, somewhat depressed and quite dreary. The snow expected to bring to us the first snow day of the year didn't come, if course — there was an angry aura about the school. This lifted when the bomb scare came. Like a savior in 4th period class, the fire alarm went off. The school seemed to shake with a sigh of relief . . .

It wasn't a normal run-of-the-mill fire drill, though. Far from it, we were herded into the gym like so many cows and made to sit on the bleachers. Nobody had much clue as to what was going on — a strange absurd rumor floated around, but we all believed that some sick made it up "They think there's a bomb in the school . . . " Huh! A bomb?? Whatever . . .

So we sat, and we sat, and we sat. To alleviate the boredom, Liz McDonagh attempted to initiate crowd games. A wave was successfully passed around, "Taste's Great! Less Filling!" became a somewhat obnoxious chant . . . Eventually Ms. Zolubus got on the horn and announced what exactly was going on . . . there actually was a bomb scare. Far from experiencing horror and fear, most saw this as a great, somewhat unexpected way to get out of school. Most did, save a handful who either had no ride, loved school or just wanted to be different. The school literally emtied . . .

Another strange rumor is floating around now . . . the person who telephoned in the bomb scare was Joe Ranger's evil twin, Joe Bomber. (Is he really so evil??) We suspect this is just another freshman rumor though . . .

Students mill out of the lobby running in fear of the bomb.

CULTURAL STUFF

Westboro High School is now officially culturally aware. Because of some grant we got this year, we have happily deluged with "cultural events". The renowned Trent Arterberry, who performed at our school as well as at Buckingham Palace (Blows your mind, doesn't it?), came and changed many of our minds about mime. Also included in the "cultural stuff" is Oktoberfest, a day of food, jugglers, oom-pa-pa bands and Mr. Mewhiney and Mrs. Boyle's many talents, which included dancing to the oom-pa-pa band. What's the benefit of all this cultural stuff? Amazing as it may seem, usually these events are pretty entertaining and there seems to be a new relationship forming between the administration and the student body, a relationship that used to be distant and seen as dictatorial. Now there is a sort of mutual respect and cooperation growing. Hopefully this trend will continue through the years.

Mr. Mewhiney and Mrs. Boyle play patty-cake at the Oktoberfest.

Доброе утро!

Roughly translated: Good Day

(to be sung to the tune of Gilligan's Isle)

Just sit right back and you'll hear a tale, a tale of a fateful trip,
That started at Westboro High aboard a yellow bus.
Eighteen passengers flew away that day for a week long trip, a week long trip . . .
The food started getting gross,
Our stomachs were tossed,
If it weren't for the courage of the fearless leaders,
we would be lost,
we would be lost,
Our plane touched down on the runway of that muddy Leningrad strip,
With Ms. Eames,
Mrs. Dillon too!
And all of us,
And our baggage . . .
The couriers
The professor and Marianne
Here on Soviet soil!!!

Most of us agree that what we saw was something we would never forget. The stop was at the grave of Vladimir Visotsky, a Russian folk singer who appealed to all ages, creating a sort of unity. When he died, the government was so afraid of mass hysteria that they kept the whole thing secret. Not for long, within a matter of hours, thousands swelled to the funeral, all by word of mouth. Visotsky had become symbolic of the common man's desire for freedom.

Years later, there are still many mourning. The grave is covered in flowers, volunteers arrange them and put them into buckets all day. Women offer cake to visitors, (which we ate greedily for lack of food elsewhere), a man and a young boy stand together and cry, mourning the death of a man that reached every generation.

Good Day FROM the U.K.

Roughly translated: Good day

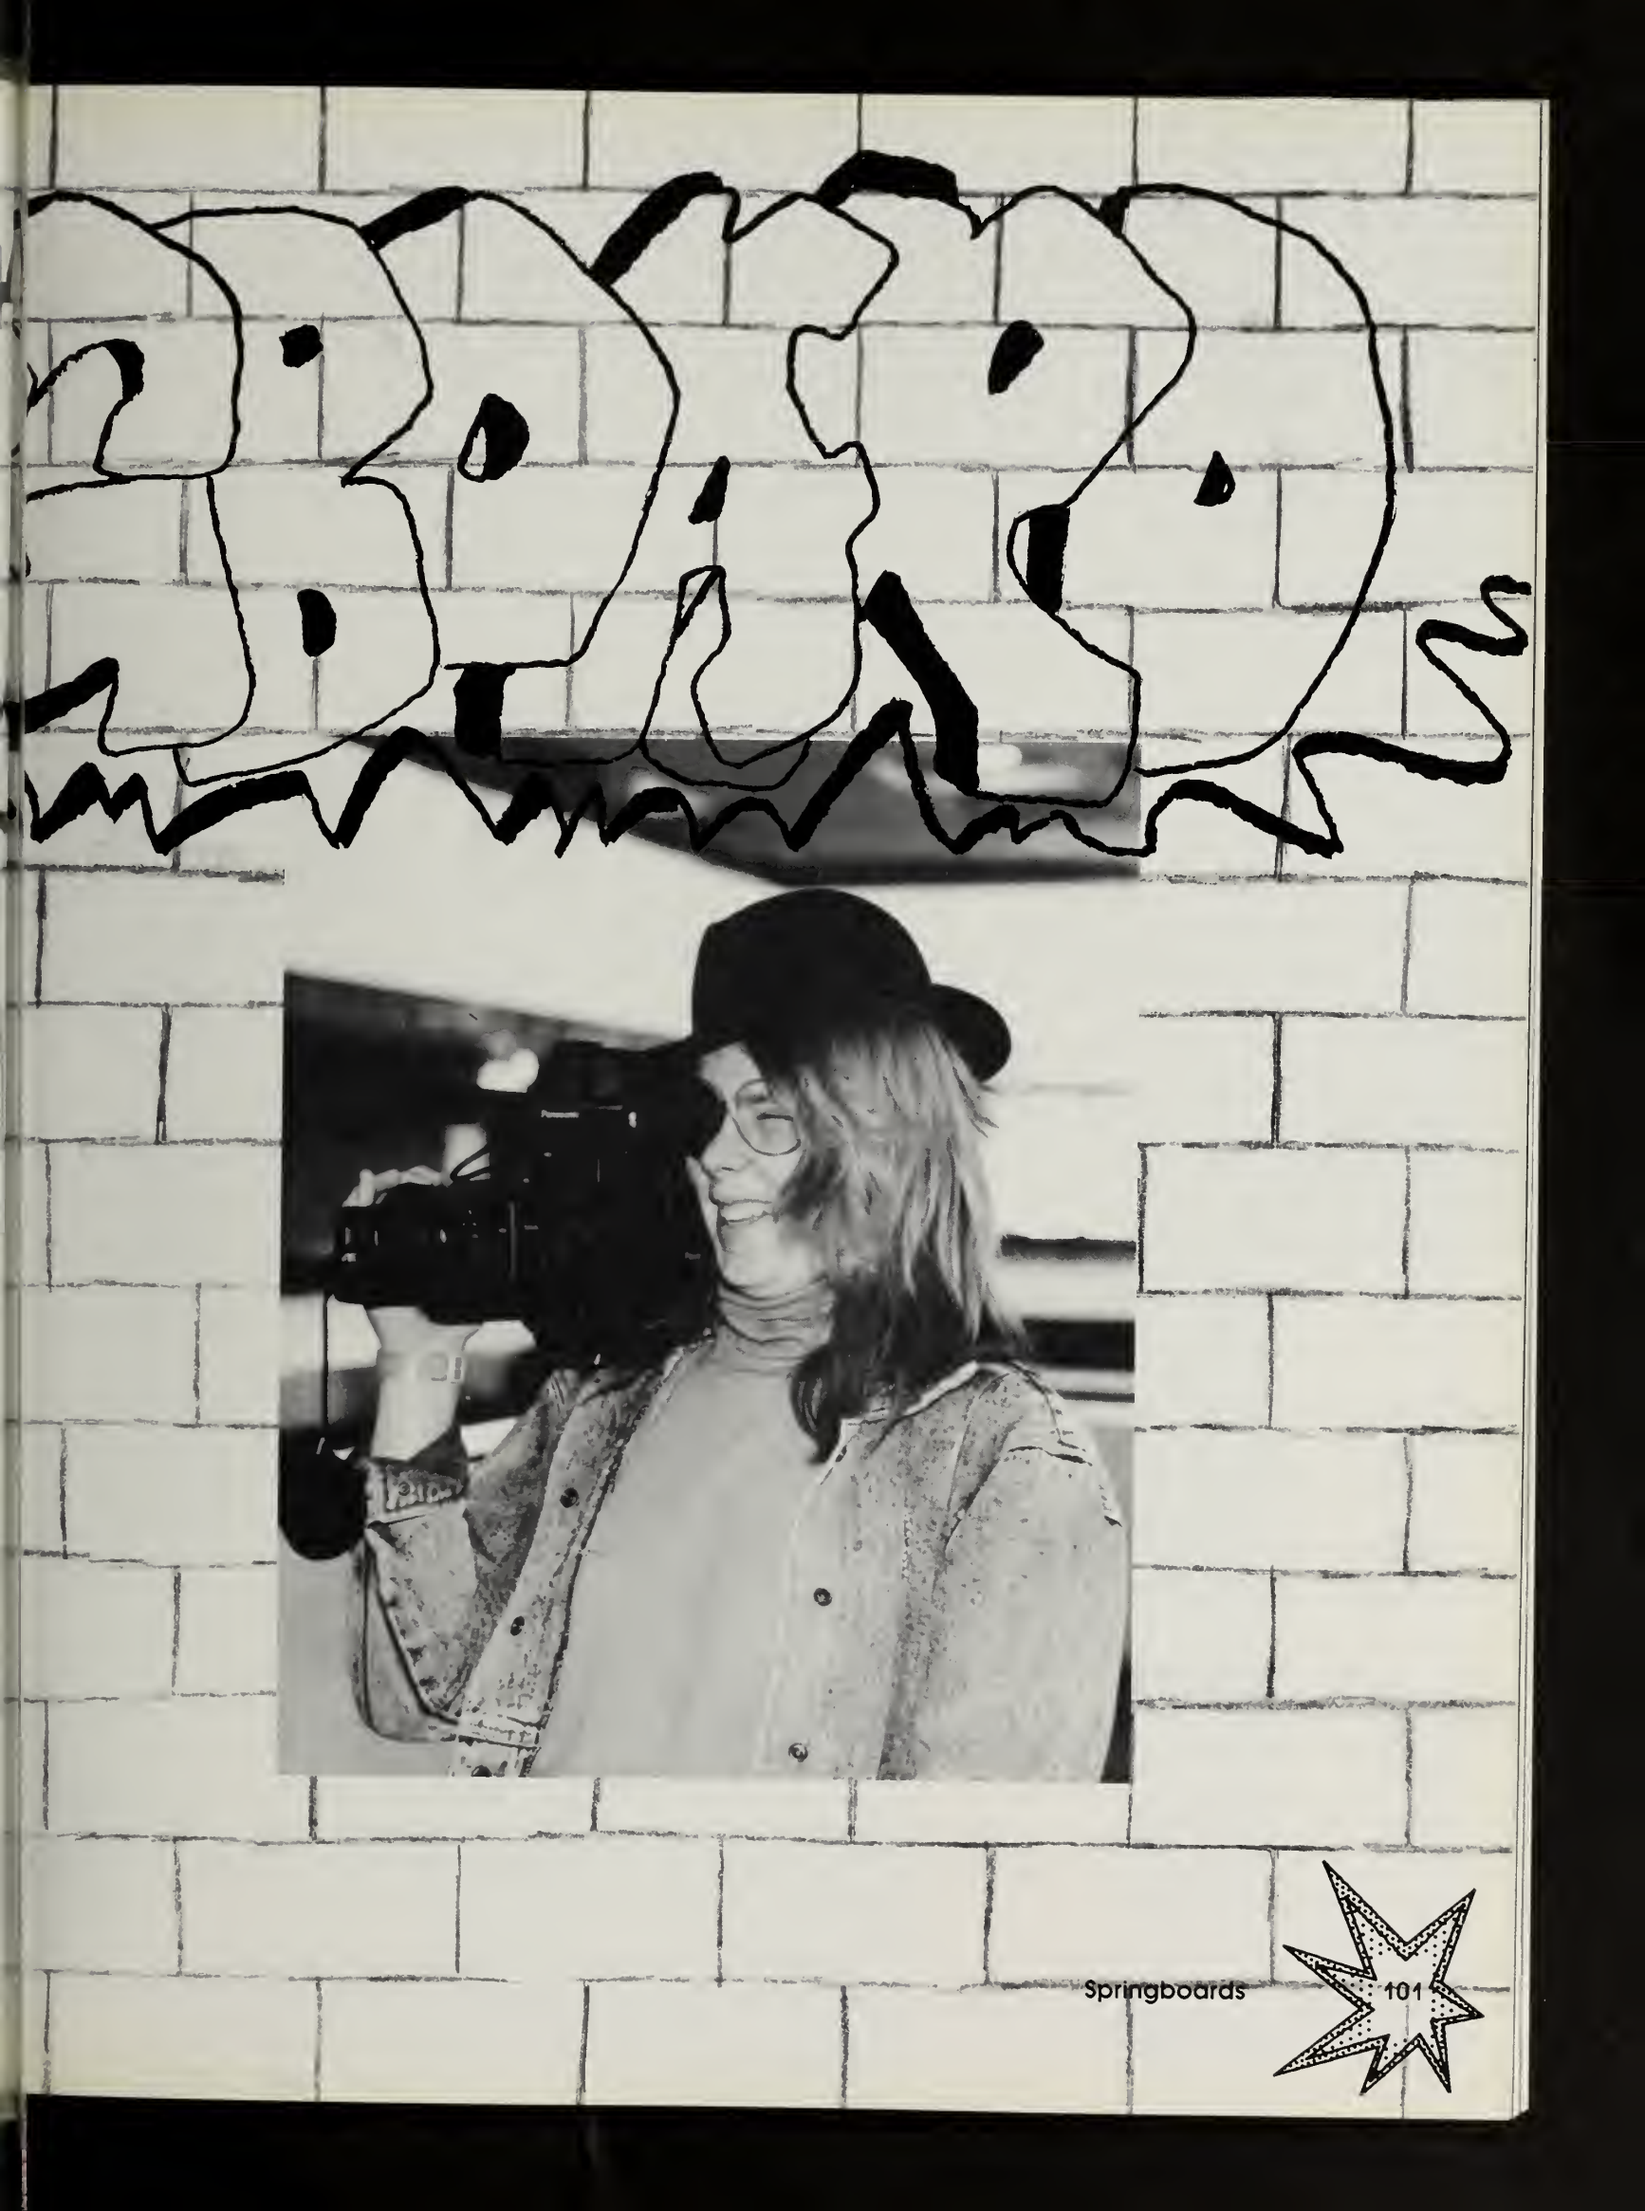
On April 14, 1989, 25 WHS students (plus one from Upton), and two chaperones (Mr. and Mrs. Morrel and Ms. Farley) left the U.S. for the U.K. Over the next ten days we spent countless hours on bus rides, tours of cathedrals, castles and museums. Leading us in our quest to understand Great Britain was Alexandra, our charming young tour guide.

Besides the whirl-wind tour of every tourist attraction there is in a hundred mile radius of London, we fit in free-time. Once we mastered the money and the Tube (the subway for all you non-Anglophiles), we were free to explore on our own.

We got back on April 23, exhausted and bursting with stories to tell. It was a trip I think we will remember for a long, long time, if not our entire lives.

- Caramellows
- Wine gum
- False arrests for shoplifting
- Neil, the bus driver
- "FOR THOSE OF YOU WHO AREN'T SLEEPING. . .!"
- Heather's killer banana
- The Imperial Hotel
- Someone who got hit by a bike
- Bar fights
- Making castle guards smile
- Bobbies!
- Song Wars
- Lost purse and passport
- Dyeing hair
- "Large" phone bills
- Duran Duran at the London Arena
- Scottish cultural exchanges
- deaf guy??

Ah, finally! We have activity periods regularly this year, instead of at the whims of our astute leaders. What they scheduled them on last year is still a mystery to me, but rumor has it that horoscopes played a role. Now, every Monday, the classes are shorter (the day seems interminably long then, doesn't it?), and last period is now ACTIVITY PERIOD! Whether it means video club, drama club, debate club, or one of the countless others, most students have some activity that they go to once a week. To quite a few seniors, Monday means Activity day and that means a shorter day. In fact, to a lucky few, a Monday can mean coming in around 8:45 and leaving around 1:00, for a grand total of little more than 4 hours of school



CREATIVE CHAOS

Michelangelo would have been proud. Amid the carefully structured periods of the day, on Mondays, during activity period, in the art room, emerge pieces of art through a plaster dust, paint splattered chaos. This is Sculpture Club, one of the newest clubs in the High School as well as one of the most popular. "Well, we pretty much do what we want . . ." says sophomore Aakash Patel. "People carve into stone . . . I work on my head because I'm behind." The head Aakash is referring to isn't the one that sits on his shoulders, but is rather the life-size self-portrait in clay that is traditionally done in Art II. "You have to do art class stuff if you are really behind like me." More than just an art class catch-up, Sculpture Club draws students from all classes (there are freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors) and artistic backgrounds. Some are currently taking art classes, some never have. Senior Mike Bacharz was in Sculpture Club last year where he carved out of soapstone a beautiful abstract figure. Most students are enthusiastic about the club: "It's real fun!" "It's pretty good . . ." "Yaw!"

The announcements sound different these days, sort of like people you know. You probably do, too. This club consists of a bunch of guys who "do" the morning announcements. Steeped in controversy, there has been consistent friction between the administration and Audioshock members. Originally intended to be a sort of in-house radio station for the morning announcements, their creative efforts have been curtailed by careful control of what is said. A few battles have been fought over the infamous Stop and Shop Tally, as well as a slight alteration in the Pledge of Allegiance. Some views from students are below:

"I think it's pretty good when you can hear them."

"I think they should have more freedom to say what they want . . ."

"I think it's a violation of their Constitutional rights to censor what they say . . ."

FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

Project Freedom is a fairly new organization started last year at Westboro High School. Upon its formation last year, it was planned to be only a temporary group brought together for the sole purpose of drawing community attention to the hostage situation in Lebanon. Now, however, it has become an ongoing activity dealing with many different current issues in society.

Presently, those participating meet weekly during activity periods. However, all the students involved are split amongst other smaller committees dealing with specific issues. Some well-known problems currently being addressed are the environment, animal rights, and the hostages.

One of the more publicized successes of this year's Project Freedom group is their involvement and support of the "Flight for Peace". The purpose of this flight is to increase understanding of one another throughout the world.

Project Freedom is the first activity of its kind to appear at WHS. Its growing success and appeal to an increasing number of students reflects an increasing awareness and enthusiasm we have about the world we live in.

AILMENT: College Pressure

CURE: Secret Santas

The Senior tradition of Secret Santa came alive in 1990. Seniors were searching for a release from "college pressure". The symptoms were evident throughout the class: baggy eyes, acne and sweat pants were commonplace; that is, until December 18th. More than the incentive of gifts, was the opportunity to finally let go and they did. The requirements for the victims included a barrage of caroling stints, poem readings and costumes. Creativity flourished; weirdness prevailed. A Rollerskating trash-picker, Mr. Rogers, and the sixth member of the New Kids on the Block were created right before our very eyes. The event came to an end on Friday with the unveiling of the person who tortured yo so — your Secret Santa. For the Sen iors, Christmas vacation did not includ the fun that the underclassmen en joyed, but a week filled with colleg applications. Secret Santas had pro vided a well-needed intermission fro the college rush.

WESTBORO, MASS- At 4:43 PM yesterday afternoon the results of the Superlative Elections came in and were made official. This year, unlike last year, and the years before that, the students were given a relatively small amount of time to cast their votes. This was done to curb campaigning. In the past years, there have been allegations that Superlatives were the result of active campaigning and pressure from friends, instead of the who-comes-to-your-mind-first vote it was initially intended to be.

y, he did.
I tried to force him to couldn't. " All this goes to show that existentialism and gambling don't mix.

WESTBORO, MASS- According to some inside sources, the editors and part of the Yearbook staff voted not to put Superlative pictures in the 1990 Yearbook, entitled "Leap in the Dark". When asked if this was true or not, one editor answered, "Yes, we didn't think they were necessary. Instead, we are putting the Superlative in bold next to the person's name next to the Senior Picture. We think it'll be more classy..."

Sports have always been a major part of Westboro High School whether it be participating on a team or just being a spectator. It is a great release of tension after a stressful day of school. There are a variety of sports allowing maximum participation. It is this participation that makes just about every team a contender in their league. Our sportsmanship and expertise are well known in the surrounding towns. Also, joining a team enables you to either meet new people that you ordinarily wouldn't get to know, or just spend more time with your friends.

Sports are not restricted to school — many people participate in sports independent of what we have here. There's swim teams, ski teams, equestrian events, handball, bowling leagues, pool, skating, hiking, racquetball, aerobics (Yoga!), darts, archery, croquet, Bocce ball . . . well, you get the point.

Actually, the point is that any participation in sports, regardless of whether it's jello wrestling or Bocce ball or football, is beneficial to the body, the mind and the soul.

Rangers Make It To The Superbowl

Some may call it luck, we called it DESTINY. The backfield was a solid group of three senior co-captains, Shawn Sprague, and Nield Montgomery at halfbacks and Steve Stuart at fullback. These three and junior quarterback Dave Candela led the offensive attack while returning junior starters Dave Moynihan and John Schaefer led the defense. Also, the defensive line, led by co-captain Bob Tashjian, was a powerful unit in spite of their lack of size. The season was filled with great moments, climaxing in an incredible second half comeback against the Hudson Hawks to keep a Superbowl birth alive. This win catapulted the Rangers into a Turkey Day Showdown with Algonquin for a trip to the Bowl. With emotions running high, we rolled the Tomahawks and made a second appearance of the Ranger Football team in a Super Bowl with the Leominster Blue Devils. After a valiant effort, the Rangers were defeated by the Blue Devils and ended the season with a record of 9-2.

The captains and the entire team would like to thank Coach Gebo, Bilodeau, Gripp and Mason for their efforts this season and would also like to recognize that the 1989 Ranger Football season has been dedicated in the memory of Matthew Pano.

Winter Cheerleaders

Sheer Energy

Unlike many fall sports, the cheerleading season began with tryouts in May. An enthusiastic team was chosen and the work began. When school let out in June, the cheerleaders began their strenuous week at camp. From eight in the morning to nine at night, the girls learned new cheers, mounts and dances for the upcoming season. Equipped with an arsenal of these new cheers and "never performed" stunts, the team was prepared for the opening game.

Led by senior captains WHS cheerleaders brave the coldest and wettest weather and still maintain the enthusiasm required by the crowds and the football team.

The winter cheerleaders learn a new set of cheers and also prepare for their own tournament. Endless hours are spent perfecting their routines. The cheerleaders attribute their success to their coach Karen Desiata.

If one was ever around after school this past fall, one could see a group of about sixteen girls running throughout Westboro. Often times the girls would be scattered within the region between Ruggles Street and Chestnut Street and the High School. Although the girls may have just run six miles their legs move with the same ease and grace as they did at first. Sophomore Erika Ingerman and senior captain Mary Keane could often be seen leading the pack over the long winding road. The trees form a web of netting over one's head and in the heat provide a shadow to cool one's sweaty back. Through hot and cold weather, through rain and sun and wind, through losses as well, the team carries on with admirable effort for such an amateur team. Being of only one senior, one junior (Jessica Walcott), four sophomores and four freshmen, the team did remarkably well in the League Meet and Nashoba Invitational. 1989 proved to be a good start for a team with potential under the coaching expertise of Coach Doyle and the long winding roads of Westboro.

AROOGA!

"One . . . two . . . three, AROOGA!" If you heard this strange exclamation during the fall, then the Boys Cross Country team was surely to be found some place near. The insane O'Neil Drive Hill, nicknamed by the team as "Arooga Hill", became the standard by which other hills were measured. After taming this hill in practice, the team's progress made breathtaking strides over the year. Their final record was 5-8, a reflection of the sincere dedication of the team. The two senior co-captains, Brad Masters and Ramin (The Dream Machine) Pourali, led the team against some tough competition. The coach, Clark Masters, was happy to see so many freshmen on the team. He hopes they will become the "core" of the future seasons. In addition to personalized printouts of each race (provided by team manager Derek Sivret), there were several videotapes made at the big meets. Most importantly, the members had fun. By far, their favorite course was that of Fitchburg, complete with an abundance of different species of flora and fauna. In short, there was a prevailing attitude of positiveness throughout the year. The boys are on their way to the top. Good Luck and . . . AROOGA!

Left: Mr. Markvenas explains that if Ramin Pourali could just keep his chin up, his momentum would be virtually unbeatable.

"OOOHHH!", moans the crowd as they flinch with imagined pain. The players have collided in hot pursuit of the ball. Who said that soccer wasn't a contact sport? Sheer stamina and aggressive play are essential to a successful team. The Rangers seemed to have both this season. Yellow penalty cards flew as result of this physical contact that was so evident in this years play. The intensity showed off Westboro's talent and enthusiasm. So whats the problem? Tri-captain Kevin Burke explains, "This is one of the strongest, well-rounded teams that I have played for. We have both strong offense and defense, but sometimes we just couldn't get it together. What our record doesn't show (5 wins, 11 losses) is that a lot of those games were really close, we just couldn't hold on."

The Ranger's were led by seniors Chris Gagnon, Kevin Burke, Sean Donnelly, Jay Cox and Andy Harris. About twenty players will return as seniors ensuring an experienced team for the 1990 season.

Despite the Rangers losing record, two players were named Mid-Wachusett League All Stars. The two, senior Kevin Burke and junior Tom Borghesi, were also invited to play on a team traveling to Europe this summer.

Most aptly put by captain Kevin Burke, the Ranger's season was "physical and frustrating."

SUCCESS!

For the first time, the girls soccer team achieved a winning season with a record of 6-11-1. The success of the team was led by co-captains Alyson Morse and Christine Norkevicius along with seniors Kelli Skog and Jen Falotico. Anissa Prefontaine, in her freshman year, remarkably played fantastically and was chosen for the All Star Team. The improved skill and aggressiveness of the team contributed to the team's numerous wins. Enthusiastic cheering from the sidelines boosted the team's spirit. With the continuation of the strong coaching by Kathy and Bill McCarthy and George Kint and strong returning players will assure the team continued success. Good Luck!

The Westborough field hockey team entered the 1989 season with great hopes and expectations. After all, they had everything it would take for another perfect season; experience, ability, and desire. The Ranger's had ten returning seniors, all of whom contributed to the success of the team.

Westborough began the season with a blast. Victories over Leominster, Shrewsbury, and Algonquin helped build the team's confidence. There appeared to be no weaknesses on the field The strong forward line provided a threat to the opposing goalies, while the defense continued to shut down any scoring attempts. The team had one and only one thing in mind — going to the TURF!

The Rangers knew that Wachusett would be the team to beat. However, even after playing to the best of their ability, this was a mission even the Rangers could not accomplish. Westborough posted only two losses during the season, putting them second in the league.

Playing under Coach Debish gave every player an enthusiastic attitude as well as a tremendous love of the game. Such a gifted coach demands hard work, however, the girls always found the proper time to get in a good laugh (except that one time).

The seasons end was premature, as a devastating loss to a talented Quobog team put to rest any hope of a trip to the turf. Despite this loss, Westborough had the Desire and Determination to be the best and for that the Rangers are proud

The commitment was strong for Emily Rose, Jessica Zahavi and Melissa Lowe.

The Westborough Volleyball season had a very Untouchable season. At the end of their entire season, they had only lost one game. The very competitive and committed girls led Westborough in the Ranger spirit.

The team consisted of co-captains Jessica Zahavi and Daska Babcock with key members Emily Rose and Melissa Lowe. Other volunteers to make the commitment to the team were Laura MacKay, Mirela Gojanovic, Nikki O'Neil, and the alternate, Laura Manning.

The nickname, the ELITE FEW, came as a result of the team's numerical problems. With six girls ready to make the 110% commitment that WHS is known for, they were told it just wasn't enough. With 2 injured players, AP detentions, college interviews, and just plain other commitments, those six players deteriorated to five and four on some days. The UNTOUCHABLES was the idea that a few very skillful and challenging girls prepared for the tough season ahead would never be able to compete.

In all actuality, the reason for the great standings of one lose at the end of the season, was due to the plain fact that the Westborough High Volleyball team only played one game in the league. We can only hope that for those seniors, Emily Rose and Melissa Lowe, they will be able to lead a successful and complete season with plenty of girls to victory.

Heart and Desire

Talent, Unity, Excitement

It would be said that this year's WHS basketball team was one of talent, unity, and excitement. No stars on this team, but all solid players each with good ability and the talent to provide that timely spark which made theyear so magical.

With our big five starters and one of the strongest benches in the league, we were complete. Everybody contributed in their own special way; Jim Hayes' dunks, Tom Keane's three-point bombs, John Schaefer's hustle, Kevin McNamara's defense, a speedy backcourt, and a bench when the job got done with persistence and heart. With balanced scoring and a patient halfcourt game, we'd be successful, and we were.

The Rangers were led through the season by long time coach Richard LaDuke and his assistant Marty Hayes. They were not only the coaching keys but also the motivational keys as well. It would stand out most when the Rangers hit a snag in the eleventh contest. The Rangers hit a two game slump when they were humbled by league leader Gardner and stunned by pitiful Hudson, which left the record at 9-3. They needed something, something to motivate the team and provide a spark. The coaches would provide that spark to bring the Rangers back.

All the hard work paid off in the long run as the Rangers closed out the regular season with a long string of W's and very few L's. The Rangers' hard work would eventually gain them a berth in post-season play. In post-season, the team would continue to play the way they have all year — with talent, unity, excitement and heart. Incidentally, there is only one senior on this year's squad, captain Nield Montgomery; the rest are juniors or less. Kind of gives you something to look forward to, doesn't it?

Right: Coach Fanselow stands akimbo looking anxiously as her team plays. Coach Fanselow is the new varsity coach for girl's basketball and will hopefully bring the team to success.

A New Start

The Westboro High Girl's Varsity Basketball team began the 1989-1990 season with a first time victory over Southbridge High in many years, avenging a losss to Southbridge in the district semifinals last season. The season appeared to have a good start with five victories in six games. However, with the head coaching position in transition and the expansion of the Midland-Wachusett League, including contests with four Division I teams, the team encountered some difficulties in the victory column. Player injuries added to the problems of an already small team — eight varsity players. When team members were healthy and in game form, victories resulted. Senior tri-captains Jennifer Gorak, Jane Gallagher, and Cynthia Caldwell assisted their team to a regular season 9-8 record. The season marked the first time that the girl's basketball team competed in a post season tournament separate from the district playoffs. With Westborough's new varsity coach Sis Fanselow, fans should anticipate future great teams developing at W.H.S.

CONFIDENCE

The Westboro Ranger gymnastic team record did not show the tremendous improvement of the team over the course of this season. This was a season of maturation and looking ahead to a stronger, more experienced team next year. From meet to meet, each girl improved individually — the primary goal of the team.

Gymnastics is a sport of not only agility and grace but of sheer determination and guts. The pressure of performance is immense — as the girls found. With each meet, however, a certain air of confidence was developed. It is this self-assured attitude that not only improves gymnastic performance but life performance as well. Unlike many high school sports, an individual can see their improvements as individuals and can recognize their weaknesses. This can be both good and bad; you rely on you and only you for those minutes of your routine — if the performance was bad, you can only blame yourself, however if it was good, you reap the benefits soley. This is where the team aspect of the sport comes in, their support is indespensible.

Co-captains Kristen Bauer and Jen Kahler, along with the coach Liz MacDougall, led the team through a year of skill and confidence building. They look forward to next years team of experienced, talented members.

UNITY

"The Rebuilding Year" is what many decided to call the 1990 hockey season. After losing eight seniors last year (many of them being starters), things didn't look too great for the 1990 team. Compounding the problem was the loss of a couple potential starters due to grades and whatnot. This almost spelled disaster for the team, however, thanks to Chris Gallo ('91) and Mike Colangelo ('92) — this year's only two returning starters that stayed for the entire season — this wasn't the case at all. Luck brought two new starters that also helped to keep the season from being a disaster — Tyler Dustman ('90) and Steve LeBlanc ('93).

Despite a lot of pessimistic predictions for the hockey team's '89-'90 season, the team bucked the odds and got off to a good start at the Hockey Jamboree. Unfortunately this was followed by two crushing defeats by power houses Hudson and Algonquin. Not allowing these upsets to get in the way, the team got back on its feet (skates) and pulled off a 3-2 victory over Grafton. Led by high-socring junior Chris Gallo, Westboro defeated such foes as Nashoba Tech, Worcester Voke, Monty Tech, and Keefe Tech by huge margins. Despite these wins, the tally for losses is greater.

Making up for any lack of talent the team may have is that of team unity. The players love the sport and became great friends. The record does not portray how much these fourteen players worked and devoted themselves to the sport . . . it isn't easy skating with only two lines and two defensemen!

Matt Lives On...

We'll always remember that smile. It had a way of telling something about you and yet there was always that impish mystery to keep us guessing. You had a way about you that would speak without words and you projected and warmth and kindness that touched those who knew you. Your friendships were so wide and varied that we cannot help but be amazed. Caring was foremost in your thoughts as you always had a kind word for everyone. Sports and physical activity was your domain and you tried them all, and always had fun.

You made us all laugh when we needed to cheer up and feel good. You were a cordial young gentlemen that gave us eighteen years of kindness, thoughtfulness and love.

You will always be in our hearts, Matt. We love you very much.

Mom and Dad
Penny and Rob

Without a doubt, Matt was always filled with jokes and laughter and showed "that smile" of his. He always displayed a sense of kindness and thoughtfulness towards anyone and everyone. Under any circumstances, he was always there for others when needed. His innocence led him to do no wrong. Matt always had a desire to succeed in both academics and athletics. (Though academics never came first in his priorities.) He was always so fun to be with and had a way of making your day. As for being his brother and friend, I could not have asked for any better. You'll always live in my heart. I love you Matt.

In loving memory
His Brother Rob

MATTHEW PANO

March 25, 1971 — May 6, 1989

Words cannot describe what Matt meant to me, and to the class of 1990. He was caring, happy and the best friend anyone could ask for. He was a big brother to everyone. Matt had a smile that could brighten anyones day and a laugh that could only make you laugh with him. Mike Dean once said "If you ever think that he's gonna stop loving us for one second, you're crazy." — how true this is. Matt will always be a part of me, as I'm sure he will always remain in the hearts of the class of 1990.

WE LOVE YOU MATT.

Jay Cox

We all knew him in our own way. Some knew him as Doughboy, some as Matty and most of us as Snackbar. But there's one thing that we can all agree on, and that's the inner sunshine that Matt set free in his laughter. A smile from Matt would brighten our days and make our lives a little easier. Sometimes I think Matt knew a little more than we did. His boyish innocence disguised his deep thoughts and feelings, but I think we could understand him even though he didn't want to show them. I know none of us will forget him because being together we can share and remember. We love you Matt and you will always be with us.

You could pay more for a gold class ring. With Jostens you have a choice.

There's nothing like the look of gold. Unfortunately, there's nothing like the price, either.

But you can have one without the other. In Jostens' fine yellow alloy, Aurora.

And like all Jostens rings, it's made by hand and carries a full lifetime warranty. So, come see the Aurora rings. Thanks to our craftsmen, they're almost as good as gold. Thanks to their price they may even look better.

ADDENDUM

ADDENDUM: supplement, appendage, appendix, codicil, annex, insertion, prefix, corallary, accessory — (schwa-den'-dschwamé) noun. pl.-da (-dscwa) abb. add. Latin-neuter of addendus, gerundive of addere, to add, future predicative in the additive case — addereiti-place to put all the extra stuff we couldn't fit in the beginning. Not to be mistaken for duodenum, (AP BIO!) a small obscure tube in the human body. This is not a duodenum.

THIS IS NOT AN ADDENDUM, THIS IS A DUODENUM.

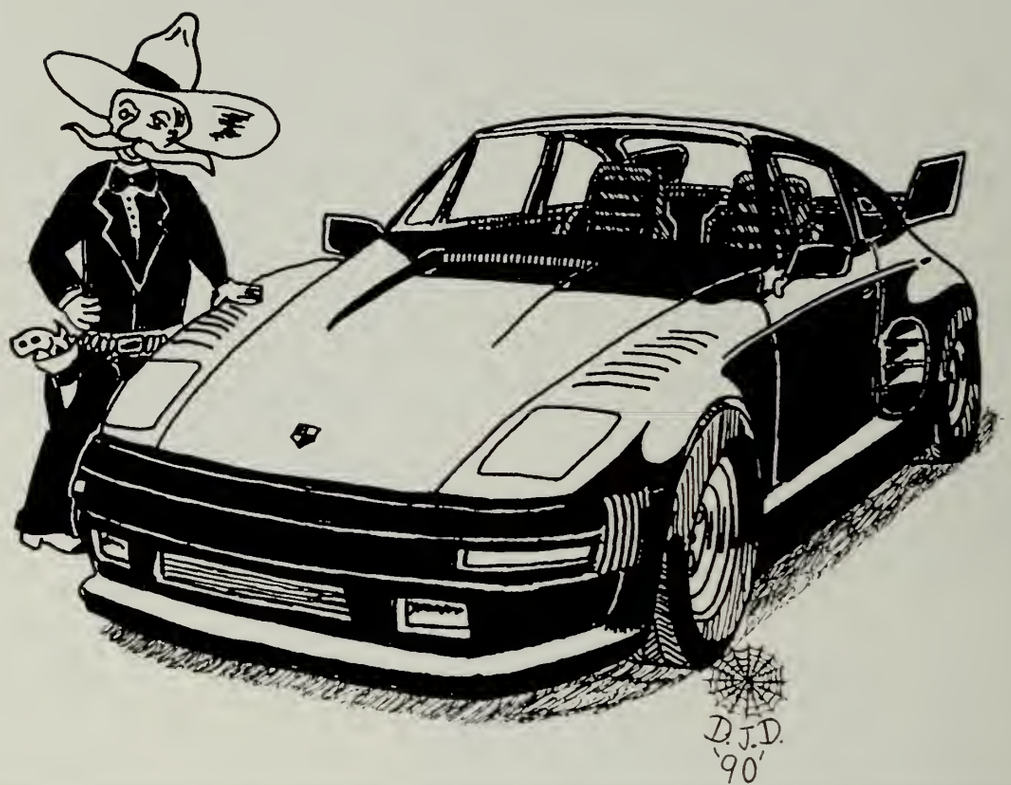
WHEELS



At last, "the Day" arrives. You planned it to coincide exactly with your sixteen and a half birthday, its the day of your drivers test. Fear is the motivator — if you fail you must face your friends. But of course, if you pass, no longer will you be bus bound.

You've passed — now the real test. How bad can they possibly make you look in the photo? Mortification sets in. Do you really look like that? Your friends must see the license, so you do the mature, sensible thing and cover your face with your thumb. But they insist on verifying its authenticity — you assure them that if it was a fake, you would have made yourself at least 21. Well, you've earned the privilege of bounding up the main stairs, keys in hand. You offer rides home to anyone who will accept — you now have an audience to explain (in great detail) your latest near accident. These highly exaggerated accounts possess the passenger to buckle that seatbelt and hold on.

But these are the elite few. Those less fortunate have their licenses but not the privilege of owning a car. They must rely on the their ability to manipulate their parents into handing over the car keys.

Nevertheless, car owners and car borrowers must never forget those whose help made that joyful day possible.
